Your most dated section may earn clicks

For anyone refreshing old blog posts, on their own site or for clients.

THE INSTINCT

Trim whatever reads old

An old year, tool or price. Cutting it feels like cleanup.

THE RISK

Dated sections can still answer real queries

Cut them and their traffic leaves with them.

STEP 1

Export the page’s queries

In Search Console, filter the Performance report to this one page.

STEP 2

Sort them by impressions

The top of the list shows what the page is really found for.

STEP 3

Ctrl+F each query's main words

Find the section that answers it and note its heading.

STEP 4

Label every section

"Earns traffic" or "no queries found." Only the second kind goes.

BEFORE YOU JUDGE

14 days

Wait, then compare

If clicks drop, restore the sections you cut first.

DO THIS NOW

Pick one post due a refresh

Pull its queries and label each section before editing anything.
